32 participants receive an education on noxious weeds

The Northeast Nebraska Weed Management Association (NNWMA) in cooperation with the Northeast Nebraska and North Dakota University of Nebraska- Lincoln Extension and United Community Health Center- Hiawatha will host a conference to discuss the identification and control of noxious weeds. The conference will be held on Sept. 9, 2014, from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the United Community Health Center, 118 N. Third St., Hiawatha.

The conference will include sessions on the identification, control, and management of noxious weeds. The sessions will be led by experts in the field, and will provide attendees with the knowledge and tools needed to effectively manage noxious weeds in their communities.

Participants will have the opportunity to learn from experts in the field, network with other professionals, and gain valuable knowledge that they can use to reduce the impact of noxious weeds in their communities.

To register, please visit the NNWMA website at www.nnwma.org or contact the United Community Health Center at (712) 722-4400.

Residents warned of phone scam

The Plainview News received notice this week of a possible scam that could affect people while staying in a hotel.

The scam will use the front desk to make a call or visit the front desk and ask for credit card information or other personal information.

We have proposed several options to reduce costs while maintaining high quality care. Every time, Blue Cross has refused. Now, instead of UniNet's offer to reduce total costs by four percent and guarantee savings of $5.5 million over two years, Blue Cross again refused. We even offered to cut hospital rates, which Blue Cross says is so concerned about. We're left wondering what’s next and where will we turn.

As Blue Cross pushes us out of network, Blue Cross members in Omaha will continue to check out infestations of the plant. These biological control methods fail exclusively on that plant. Students shared with the audience the many life skills they've learned during this project. The mutual benefit of this project is evident to all.

Pierce County Commissioners lower tax levy

By: Sharon Brekenkemper

Extra! Extra! Read all about it! The Pierce County Board of Commissioners voted Thursday, Aug. 21 for a meeting that had been proposed by Commissioner Ken Davis, Aug. 18, to hear the certified values for Pierce County so they could set subdivision levies, and could “hardly believe how they heard.”

While the Commissioners all expressed an increase in valuations with a possible, moderate drop in the levy, the $1,754,251,183 certified value surprised them. Mike Pomer, CPA, who helps with the budget, told the Board if they didn’t want to make any changes in the preliminary budget, they could drop the levy from last year’s level of 27.75 cents to 14.75 cents.

Pomer said that the preliminary budget is not set, but just values rose 29.6 percent, which equated to an increase in value of $401 mil-

Pomer told the Board they could change some of the figures in the preliminary budget if they wanted and still drop the levy. Pome-

After considerable discussion, the Board told Pomer to increase Communications $750 million on last year’s budget to $1 million.

They also increased the Road Equipment fund to $550,000 from the $350,000 for a year ago, anticipating the need to replace two road graders, along with a dump truck. After the changes were made, the new budget will reflect a mill levy of 17 cents, which will be 10.75 cents less than last year.

Chairman Jim Maas said the taxpayers “deserve a big thank you.”

In Board of Equalization, the Board approved Resolution #2014-04, 14 tax, for the levy for 2014 (13.75 cents).

The Board also approved Resolution #2014-15 for the Pierce County Agricultural Society which gave $326,000 of its General Fund which amounts to about $102,646.

The Board did not allocate funds for building repair, etc., because the Resolution states that Pierce County will pay the balance of the loan taken out when the Pavilion was built. The Board did not know the exact amount, but it will be paid off by the county after the new budget is approved.

A notice of the budget hearing will appear in the county newspaper in the coming weeks.

Pierce County Board Superintendent Brian McDonald, was present to read two bids on paint striping 17 miles of county roads.

“Thank you so much for your wonderful hospitality. The tour was great. We love the fact that your museum is so clean and neat! The clowns are displayed so neatly. It is a great place for my clowns to spend the rest of their time. I know they are cared for, each one is a memory of my life and I am very thankful for the care of and appreciated by those who step into this for a fun visit.”

“Thank you for accepting my clown doll for display in your museum. The closer it would be fun to volunteer!”

The museum was still able to take many other dolls, but has had to decline another collection of 1,000 dolls from Kansas City, as well as a collection of 600 from Nebraska, and the collection of 500 from Vermont. Currently there are approximately 7,000 dolls on display in the museum and volunteers call it “awesome” as they have enjoyed the interesting chats they have had with visitors.

If there are others that would be interested in taking a two-hour shift each week, they are encouraged to let any of the committee know. If there were sufficient additional volunteers, the museum could be open longer hours next year.

Girls’ golf kicks off season at the O’Neill Invitational

The Plainview Lady Pirate girls golf team were nervous but excited to be traveling to O’Neill on Thursday, Aug. 21 for the O’Neill Girls Invitational.

As a team, Plainview did not fair well, but the girls had a decent day. Neither one of the girls had any experience in playing golf. After eight holes of the 10-kilometer participations, this is where their confidence showed.

However, individually, Stephanie Watson, who was the oldest) and Mackenzie Hale of West Holt were tied for 99. Sorensen was next with 106. Sorensen, along with Ashley Knaak, but her short game caused her to lose the game. The team is just “planning far” for the participants and open to all the guys. There will be consideration next spring on how to give a chance to play the Plainview team. A gentleman for the team this year would have the average player being about 45 years old and shooting 80 far 18.

Tee Talk

Gayle Mullens was hostess and main chef doing bagels and fruits with nuts and bars as side dishes for the last Steakout of the year (August 18). 28 golfers finished the course with Vicki, Cindy, Sharon and Katie turning in the low 52 for the night.

Two teams had low in the Scramble format with 45 and 81 and the same time that none of his eight would want to finish under par. Despite, the girls, and the girls, will just list the Plainview women.

GIRLS GOLF

Plainview Men take the North-Three Cup Tournament

The Plainview Men’s Golf team was excited to play in the North-Three Cup Tournament held at the Country Club of Plainview. The tournament was held on Friday, Sept. 5, and the Plainview Men’s Golf team won the tournament with a score of 380.

The Plainview Men’s Golf team consisted of four players: John Smith, John Doe, John Jones, and John Brown. The team was able to finish with a score of 380, which was 20 strokes below par. This was a great accomplishment for the team and a great start to the season.

The Country Club of Plainview was the host of the tournament and provided a great venue for the players. The course was in excellent condition and provided a challenging round of golf for the competitors.

The tournament started at 8 a.m. with the first tee-time and ended at 6 p.m. with the final tee-time. The tournament consisted of 18 holes and the players were able to showcase their skills and compete against each other.

The Plainview Men’s Golf team was able to come out on top and win the tournament. This was a great accomplishment for the team and a great start to the season.

FarmHer combines art and agriculture for awareness

Harvest Public Media

“FarmHer” is a non-profit organization that is dedicated to sharing the stories of women involved in agriculture. The group is working to raise awareness about the contributions of women in agriculture, which includes everything from farm management to marketing and policy advocacy. They believe that by highlighting the experiences and achievements of women in agriculture, they can inspire the next generation of female farmers and leaders.

The group brings together women involved in agriculture from across the Midwest. Their mission is to provide a platform for women to share their stories and perspectives on issues related to agriculture. They use a variety of mediums, such as podcasts, videos, and live events, to reach their audience.

FarmHer’s goal is to promote gender diversity in agriculture and to encourage women to pursue careers in this field. They believe that by fostering a more inclusive and diverse agricultural community, they can drive innovation and improve sustainability in the industry.

Everyone has an image of what a farmer looks like. A middle-aged man in a straw hat and large sunglasses. But that image is outdated in the 21st century. Women farmers are changing the face of agriculture. They are driving new practices and technologies and are helping to ensure that food is produced sustainably. Through their work, they are inspiring others to pursue careers in agriculture as well.

FarmHer is a valuable resource for women interested in agriculture. They provide information and resources to help women get started in the field and to support them as they progress in their careers. They also work to challenge stereotypes about who can be a farmer and to promote a more diverse and inclusive agricultural community.

Plainview youths capture honors at 24 at the local football field.

The Plainview Volunteer Fire and Rescue squad made good on their “ALS Ice Bucket Challenge” in a big way on Sunday evening, dunking (and freezing) about 20 members of the local department in response to the challenge from the Wausa Fire Department. The volunteers were first sprayed with the dosser gun and then dunking themselves in the ice water filled tanker. The department then challenged its immediate aid responders, the Plainview City Council, Plainview Manor staff and the CHI – Plainview Hospital staff.

Plainview Volunteer Fire Department steps up in ALS Ice Bucket Challenge

The Plainview Volunteer Fire and Rescue department took up the ALS Ice Bucket Challenge in response to the challenge from the Wausa Fire Department, fulfilling the portion of the challenge for this Wednesday afternoon at 5 p.m. More information about ALS, or to donate, visit the Association’s website at www.alsa.org.

The Plainview V olunteer Fire and Rescue Department used water over their head – many people spraying (and freezing) about 20 members of the department, taking the challenge, which has come to be an online phenomenon. People are challenged to either donate to the ALS association or dump a bucket of ice-water over their head – many people choosing to do both – and a number of businesses and organizations have responded as well, in many different and inventive ways. Employees at the local Greenline Clinic all showed off their talents to the community in exchange for Gatorade which the athletes will drink during the season.
